Have you ever considered the importance of a pizza box? Besides the basic need of providing a container for your product, the box is an essential marketing tool. According to Pizza Today magazine, delivery customers spend more time viewing your box than all other forms of advertising combined. The first thing your customers see when receiving your pizza is the box, and the last thing they see after finishing it is the box. 25% of your customers will store leftovers in the box, where it will be viewed several more times over the next 24 hours. Given these facts, how can any pizza company settle for a standard carton that looks and functions like thousands of other pizza boxes?
